Pseudo R-Square for Logistic Regression

The output from Logistic Regression in SAS and SPSS does not provide any measure of R2. It is possible to calculate a Pseudo R-Square by using the information from the -2 Log Likelihood for the full model, and the intercept only. The result is a measure of the improvement in fit of the model that is due to the independent variables.

An Excel spreadsheet that will do these calculations for you can be found at:

http://staff.washington.edu/glynn/r2pseudo.xls

---

1Prepared by Patty Glynn, University of Washington, revised 3/20/03.